

Dr. Nkechi C. Mbaebie

November 15, 1983 - April 3, 2019

Dr. Nkechi Mbaebie, 35, of Pittsfield, passed away unexpectedly on Wednesday, April 3, 2019. Born in Nnewi, Nigeria on November 15, 1983, the daughter of the late Alfred and Keziah Nwodika Mbaebie, she graduated from Nnewi Anamba State in Nigeria. She then went on to study at Federal Government Girl's College Calabar. From there she studied at Enugu State University, and most recently, attended Tulane University New Orleans.

Nkechi worked at Life Line Medical Center and was also currently a resident at Berkshire Medical Center, where she was furthering her education as a physician.

Nkechi enjoyed playing lawn tennis. Music always put a smile on Nkechi's face, as did watching a good movie or reading a good book.

Besides her husband, Johnmary Nwofe, Nkechi is also survived by her sisters; Chinyere Ofomata, Uche Maduchem, Chioma Okafor, Amara Mbaebie and Chinenye Mbaebie; her brother, Chinedu Okonkwo. Nkechi is also survived by her dear aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews.

Funeral Notice:

Funeral services for Mrs. Nkechi Mbaebie will be Saturday, April 13 at 10:30 a.m at the Dwyer Funeral Home, with the Rev. William Furey, officiating. Calling hours will be held Saturday, prior to the service from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Burial follow at Pittsfield Cemetery.

“ I sent you test message on the 8th of April hoping to hear from you as usual but to no avail only to hear about your demise ..
Am short of words dear friend .
So heart broken and afraid .
After all the struggle , from ESUT you've never given up on what you believed in and suddenly everything ended in just one night .
I can't stop scrolling down your pictures to be sure this is real ..
You were such an amazing friend, words has failed me I can only
Continue to rest in the bosom of God

“ So so sad. Death is very cruel indeed, to snatch this gem at her prime!

Chiugo (Star) will be remembered for her intelligence, humaneness and charisma.

It is well.

“ RIP Nkechi. I didn't really know you until we said hi in passing at the hospital. As a fellow African, I always enjoyed seeing my peers endeavoring to succeed and were a great example. Rest Well and God keep you safe

“ Dr Nkechi Chiugo Star Mbaebie! How would I have known that our video call on sunday, March 24th would be our last conversation? How do I explain that within 10 days, my plans of attending your graduation ceremony became plans of attending your funeral.... HOW?? May God help us to number our days! Nkay dear, I take solace in the fact that lived a good life worthy of emulation. YOU ARE TRULY A STAR. Thank you for being an amazing friend. I will forever hold onto the memories we shared in New Orleans. Sleep on my friend till we meet to part no more. May your soul rest in peace in the bosom of our Lord. Amen.

“ I am still in shock after hearing this sad and devastating news. My sadness runs very deep. I remember the first time I met you, a caring and loving person. You had a smile every time I saw you. Always full of enthusiasm and inspiring to be larger than life. An ardent patriot, who always inspired others by your example to rise above.

I could always count on you day or night. You took students in your apartment and allowed them to live with you until their rooms were available.

You always reached out to others when they were in need, I always appreciated you for that. I was lucky enough to get an opportunity to not just know you as a Tulane student, but as a caring and loving person I considered a true friend.

My heartfelt condolences to the bereaved family. I pray that the almighty gives your family the strength to withstand this tragic moment. May your soul rest in peace.
