“ I remember how excited your father and mother were when they showed me your ultrasound picture. They had cut out a little red Sox hat and taped it to the picture and we all had a good laugh about it. I remember the sparkle in your mom's eye when they decided that your middle name would be Danger. I remember sitting in the bar in your mom's back yard drinking icy cold beers with your father and listening to him go on about all the things he and his son were going to do together. You were born into this world surrounded by love, and that is where your memories will stay. Rest In Peace ,Harley.
