“ Not sure if this is the same man I knew, but if so, he was very friendly, caring, and generous to me. I helped him move out of his house one time (he gave me a lot of food and other everyday items from his house that he didn't need anymore), and he often took me on rides to places that he was also going, so that I could both do my grocery shopping and assist him with his own food and housewares purchases; I also would occasionally give him aid and attendance with tasks where his infirmities made them difficult. I miss him a lot.
